Welcome to the United States Attorney's Office Eastern District of Pennsylvania

The United States Attorney's Office (USAO) for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania is responsible for one of the nation's largest districts covering about 4,700 square miles with over 5 million people residing within its nine counties. The district is unique in its diversity, evident not only in its environment but also in its population. From a large metropolitan city to country farm to mountain town, the Eastern District of Pennsylvania represents a microcosm of the nation. Cultures from all parts of the world have migrated to this region and have established themselves as members of Pennsylvania community.

Philadelphia is the country's fifth largest metropolis, housing over 1.5 million people, and the birthplace of our nation. The city is rich in historical significance, including Independence National Historic Park, the home and resting place of Benjamin Franklin, and many other sites. Philadelphia is a thriving seaport that is also noted for its world renowned educational system of colleges and universities. Business is also well established in the fields of health care, government, insurance and international travel and trade.

The district's other counties, Berks, Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Lancaster, Lehigh, Montgomery and Northampton reflect a mixture of settings and cultures: Allentown, Bethlehem and Easton are reaping the benefits of the suburban expansion; Chester, Montgomery and Bucks counties are experiencing growth in residential and business development; and Lancaster county, with its farms and rolling hills, remains home to the Pennsylvania Dutch, farmers, tradesmen and other artisans supplying fresh produce, new home construction, crafts and many other products.

All About the Office

The United States Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania is one of the largest districts in the country with 125 Assistant United States Attorneys (AUSAs) currently on staff, in addition to many Special Assistant United States Attorneys. There are 105 professional staff positions in the office. We are located one block from the courthouse and adjacent to the Liberty Bell and Independence Hall. The office is divided into three divisions: Criminal, Civil, and Administration.

Training and Mentoring

The United States Attorney's Office has two Senior Litigation Counsel in each division and operates year-round training programs for AUSA's with all levels of experience. We hold NITA-Style training for newer AUSAs, give monthly continuing Legal Education in each division, assign a mentor to each newly-hired AUSA, and encourage AUSAs to attend DOJ's National Advocacy Center or serve as instructors there. Many AUSAs serve as faculty at our six area law schools.

Criminal Division

The Criminal Division consists of approximately 100 Attorneys. The Criminal Division is divided into nine teams. Each team has a team leader who serves as the specialist in that team's subject matter. Attorneys in the Criminal Division are assigned to teams and focus on the subject of that team. However, all AUSAs may receive all types of cases, depending upon their interest and the needs of the office.

The substantive teams include:

- Economic Crime
- Health Care & Government Fraud & Environmental Crime

- Official Corruption, Tax Fraud and Civil Rights
- Computer Crimes, Child Exploitation & Intellectual Property Crimes
- White Collar Crime and Terrorism & Team
- Violent Crime & Firearms
- Narcotics & Organized Crime
- Appeals
- Asset Forfeiture, Victim Witness Program & Trial

Civil Division

The Civil Division consists of approximately 25 attorneys. It is trial counsel for all federal agencies and their employees in civil litigation in the District. Primary areas of practice are tort, including medical malpractice and Constitutional tort cases, and Title VII cases alleging discrimination in hiring and employment practices by agencies of the United States. Other areas of practice include immigration, bankruptcy, debts owed the United States or its agencies, and judicial review of administrative findings. The Civil Division is a national leader in redressing fraud on government programs. Whistleblowers flock to file cases here because of the district's expertise in health care, pharmaceutical, consumer, and procurement fraud. The Civil Division uses affirmative civil enforcement tools like civil penalty and injunctive relief to enforce a wide variety of federal laws affecting the environment, predatory lending, and drug diversion. It has recovered billions of dollars for Medicare, Medicaid and other federal programs. The Department of Justice this year named the district as one of three special Focus teams in the country for prosecuting pharmaceutical and medical device fraud.

Administrative Division

The Administrative Division is responsible for planning and executing a comprehensive range of administrative services that support the mission of the United States Attorney's Office. It provides policy and procedural direction, in addition to central services support, for the District in all areas of management and administration, including Acquisitions; Financial Management; Human Resources; Litigation Support; Support Services; and Systems Support.
